Business

Business improvement specialists Oliver Wight has announced the appointment of Gary Connors as a new associate, as he brings his wealth of experience to the table within his role as a consultant for the European, African and Middle Eastern operations of the business.

Gary Connors has over 25 years of experience in the Chemical and Pharmaceutical industries where he specialised in implementing improvement initiatives across supply chains, therefore he will be crucial now to maintaining the reputation that has been built up at Oliver Wight through delivering business excellence.

"Gary brings a wealth of experience to the team, alongside a pragmatic and motivational approach to business development," commented Les Brookes, the Oliver Wight EAME CEO and Managing Partner. "We're delighted to welcome him to Oliver Wight, and clients can look forward to seeing great things from him in the future."

Connors began his career in the pharmaceutical industry in South Africa as a chemical engineer, after graduating with a BSC in Chemical Engineering from Cape Town University, and throughout his career he has managed to pick up valuable skills from a variety of positions which includes project-managing schemes in both mid-size and large corporations.

"People are the key in driving successful business transformation" commented Oliver Wight's new associate. "By educating business leaders and getting decision-makers on board, organisations can begin to truly change their cultural mind-sets and achieve business excellence."

Gary Connors is clearly excited at the prospect of inspiring organisations to push their ambitions further than they could have ever imagined, and his work ethic and ambition is exactly what Oliver Wight is surely wanting in a person.

So this seems like the perfect move both for the company and Connors himself, and the possibilities as to how far the company can go and how much it can achieve with Gary Connors' guidance are endless.
